

Peter Krstrup is Professor of Sport and Health Sciences at University of Southern Denmark (SDU), and Chair of Health Sciences at the Danish Institute for Advanced Study (DIAS) at SDU. He has published 450 peer-reviewed scientific articles on Sport as Medicine and Performance in Elite Football and other team sports. He is a UEFA Pro-Licensed football coach and has worked as Assistant Coach for the Danish National Team, and Fitness Coach in the Danish Premier League. He has contributed to the development of the evidence-based football concepts “Football Fitness”, “11 for Health”, “FIT FIRST 10”, “FIT FIRST 20”, “FIT FIRST Teen”, “Football for the Heart”, “FC Prostate” and “Football Fitness After Breast Cancer”. In 2018, he established the international scientific platform, Football is Medicine platform (FIM), with annual scientific conferences. He is Chairman of FIM, which constitutes 300 researchers from 25 countries. He has won several research communication awards including the University of Copenhagen Science Communication Award (2007), the Sports Prize of the Year (2017), the Research Communication Award at SDU (2021) and the UEFA Grassroots Award (2023).