

Casper Nim graduated as a chiropractor with a Master of Science from the University of Southern Denmark (SDU) in 2016. He was awarded a PhD from SDU in 2021. He currently works as a senior researcher at the Spine Centre of Southern Denmark, University Hospital of Southern Denmark, and as an Assistant Professor at the Department of Regional Health Research at SDU.

Casper Nim's main research interests lie in spinal pain and health services research, with a focus on how people with spinal pain navigate the healthcare system and what factors influence their care pathways. He has published more than 55 scientific papers, with a particular emphasis on spinal manipulation. He has presented his work at international conferences, educational institutions, podcasts, and other dissemination platforms.