

Catherine Quinn is a Fellow and Trustee of the Royal College of Chiropractors Sports Faculty, Parasport Development Officer for FICS and Past-President of the British Chiropractic Association. Responsible for leading the repositioning of the BCA in 2021, Catherine has engaged with stakeholders in the healthcare and regulatory landscape to redefine the identity of chiropractic in the UK to one of patient centred care, aligned in language with the wider healthcare community. Catherine has extensive experience in advising chiropractors and other healthcare professionals on their regulatory responsibilities, ethical healthcare business practice and in supporting chiropractors at all stages of professional conduct committee. She is in practice at Cleve Chiropractic and Physiotherapy Centre, Bristol and is passionate about the promotion of chiropractic and its contribution to Public Health. An advocate for integrated healthcare, Catherine is a member of the Football Medical Association and formed part of the medical team at QPR for 9 seasons after two seasons at London Irish RFC, Southampton FC, and touring with the New Zealand Rugby League Team. Catherine has worked at international sporting events including the 2012 Olympic games, 2013 Rugby League World Cup and 2022 Commonwealth Games. Catherine has lectured internationally on Sports Chiropractic and what the profession can learn from this integrated healthcare environment.
